

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to novel magnetic resonance imaging contrast agents that report on physiological events in a conditional fashion and simultaneously detect the delivery and/or activation of a therapeutically active agent.